Trying a Class in Muscle and Grit Before Testing their Brains. Seventy-five men will be needed this year to keep the force of men in the Fire Department up to standard, and yesterday was set apart for a test of the muscles of twenty-two young men who had previously been found sound in lungs and heart. Civil Service Examiner R. T. Greener, colored, and Chief Hugh

Bonner were present. At 10 o'clock the class was ranged on a long bench in Wood's gymnasium in East Twentyfive feet seven inches, being at the head, and the largest, a raw-boned six-footer, at the foot,

No. I was invited to try his grip.

A stout spring, bent into something like the shape of a narrow letter U, was given to him, and he grasped it by the horns and gave it a hearty squeeze, first with one hand and then the other. He was a young man, with shoulders like a prize fighter, but the sum of the squeeze of both hands, as registered by the pointer, was only 200 pounds. Three men could only squeeze up to 180, but quite a number, includaqueeze up to 180, but quite a number, including the four big men at the end, crushed the machine up to 270 and 280 pounds.

Then they tried dumbbells, 50 pounds for the right hand and 45 for the left. The greater number came out of it smiling, but some grew red in the face at the effort to get the bell to the shoulder, and when it came to clevating it square above the shoulder they shook in the knees, wobbled in the back, grew groggy, and gave it up.

shoulder, and when it came to clevating it square above the shoulder they shook in the knees, wobbled in the back, grew groggy, and gave it up.

To test the extensors of the legs the candidates ast down on a plank with their backs against a post and kicked against a spring, one man, No, 5; a slender, black-haired Irishman, who made a good record all the way through, being equal to a lift of 1,200 pounds.

A test that set all the candidates to laughing, axcept the one in the act, was walking on the sidge of an inch plank set a foot above the floor. The plank was thirty feet long, and a man to get a perfect mark had to walk the length of it steadily and quickly. Only four did it well: the rest pliched and plunged off. Chief Bonner said it was a good thing for a flreman to be able to walk such a thing as that, for he never could tell whon he might want to walk a path not much wider 100 feet above the ground.

Prof. Greener held a stop watch while the candidates climbed poles. Some pulled themselves up hand over hand, scarce moving their legs at all; others painfully drew themselves up a few feet, kicking despairingly at every effort, and at last, with downcast eyes, alipped back and gave over the attempt. About half of them reached the top in good style.

After the pole climbing the young men were set to travelling along under a seventy-foot horizontal ladder, swinging from round to round by the hands. Two-thirds of the way from the end of the journey they found a round missing, and the frantic efforts of some of the tired ones to swing over that space were amusing to the rest. No. 9, a slender young man, began to show signs of failure before he had gone ten feet along the ladder. He had to struggle to reach from one round to the next, and the others were quite sure he would fail before reaching even to the missing round. But if he hadn't much muscle he had grit, and he kept on. The man who followed him overtook him, and had to wait. Reaching the oppen space No. 9 hostiatod, swung his feet, and reached for the rou assented. No. 9 may be pretty sure of getting on the force.

The last test was the rescue act. One stretched himself out on a mattress on his face as limp as possible, while another strove to pick him up to carry him away, as if rescuing a sufficeated man from a burning building. A limp carcass of 150 pounds weight is no easy burden to handle, as the candidates learned. Prof. Wood showed them how to do it. Kneeling at the head of the supposed victim, the candidate raised up the victim's head and worked his own head in underthevictim's chest from right to left, until he got it out under the victim's left armpit. Then he grasped the victim's left wrist with his own right hand and the victim's right leg with his own left hand, and thus with the victim over his left shoulder, head down behind, strove to rise and walk away. Nearly all succeeded. all succeeded.

All the candidates averaged over sixty per cent, and therefore passed. They will all try their minds on Friday in room 11, City Hall.

Charges Against the Eric County Supervisors BUFFALO, April 18.—Prison Commissioner George Blair has commenced an investigation into the complaint of the Prison Committee of the Central Labor Union against the Board of Supervisors in the matter of Union against the Board of Supervisors in the matter of the Erie county pentientiary. The complaint, which was made to Gor. Hill, and by him referred to the State Prison Commission, recites that "there is an evident conspiracy existing between the Supervisors and exprison Contractors Pratt and Letchworth to defraud the county; that the contract of the firm to utilize the labor of the convict expired Jan. 30, but that an unlawful deal was made whereby these contractors were allowed to occupy the premises for three months or more, and that they are now in actual possession and employ two hundred persons in the prison, and that the county receives no pay for this."

The New Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, April 18.-The work on the WASHINGTON, April 18.—The work on the cruiser Boston, which has been suspended pending the trial of the sister boat Atlanta, will now be pushed, and it is believed that the vessel can be made ready for trial in one month. The necessity of the steam separator placed on the Atlanta has not yet been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Department, and the Boston will be first tried without this apparatus. Work has already been ordered on the Chicago's new steering gear, and is is believed that she will be ready to go to New York in six weeks or two months.

Policeman Gailigan Arrested for Assault Superintendent Murray's investigation of little Katle Pokomy's charge of indecent assault against Policeman Gailigan of the Morrisania squad resulted yesterday in the accused policeman being put under arrest, after being deprived of his shield. He was subsequently held in the Harlem Police Court. The Ruperintendent took this course, as he did not wish to dispose of so serious a charge himself, and thought that, as it was of a criminal nature, it came within the jurisdiction of a magistrate. Commissioner French, who attended the hearing, agreed that Gailigan should be prosecuted criminally if at all.

Col. Merritt Made a Brigadier. WASHINGTON, April 18. - The President to day appointed Col. Weeley Merritt to be a Brigadier-General vice Brig. Gen. Orlando B. Willion reured. DONOVAN DIDN'T DIVE.

His Mother Warned the Bridge Police and The intention of Lawrence M. Donovan, the jumper, to dive from the Brooklyn Bridge into the East River, has been whispered about among sporting men for two weeks. There was a bet of $500 on the event made by two Philadelphia sports against an equal amount put up by friends of Donovan. On Sunday Donovan stated that on Monday he would plunge head first from the highest point of the Brooklyn Bridge through 140 feet of space Brooklyn Bridge through 140 feet of space into the East River. Donovan was to receive $500 if he won the bet. Donovan jumped from the bridge on Aug. 25, and from the Niagara Falls Suspension Bridge on Nov. 7.

There was a sort of a farewell gathering of Donovan's friends in Michael F. Keating's saloon in New Chambers street on Sunday night, and when the party broke up Donovan said that he did not think he would be alive twenty four hours later. At noon yesterday he dressed himself in a suit of skin-tight silk underwear, a tight pair of trousers, a pair of blue canvas shoes, a silk cap stuffed with cotton and held on by a rubber band around his chin. Throwing a heavy overcoat over hisshoulders, he walked around from his home at 58 New Chambers street into Park row. Here he was met by a close can and a jolly shilor named William F. Carr.

In the mean time little gray-haired Mrs. Donovan had missed ber son's sporting suit, and was filled with a wild alarm. She ran down stairs barcheaded and asked Mr. Kesting if Larry wasn't going to risk his life.

"Yes," said Kesting, bluntly; "he is going to dive off the bridge. There is no use trying to stop him, for he has made up his mind, and that settles it."

The poor old woman wandered down to James silp and sent this despatch to Capt. Ward of the bridge police:

Please prevent Larry Donovan from diving off the bridge to-lay.

The despatch was received at the Brooklyn B. Drop Dead. CARPENTERS.—A large number of first class ing or applying to the Secretary Mechanica' Exchange, No. 363 Fullon St., Brooklyn.

Please prevent Larry Donovan from diving off the bridge to-day.

The deepatch was received at the Brooklyn end of the bridge at 1 o'clock, and immediately everything was in an uproar. Capt. Ward telephoned over to this end to inspect every closed wagon and carriage that wanted to cross the bridge.

At 1:20 o'clock the cab containing Donovan and Carr rolled up to the New York entrance of the bridge. Policeman Clark opened the door and recognized Donovan immediately. He helped him out and Policeman Dooley took Carr in charge. The prisoners were taken to Brooklyn, where Capt. Ward took their pedigree. Donovan said he was 24 years old and a printer by trade. Carr said he was living at 89 Roosevelt street.

"I am a salior on the ship Joseph H. Campbell." he said, "and I arrived in this port on Friday night from Rotterdam. I live in Portland. I was walking along the street, and this gentleman said if I was going over the bridge I might as well ride with him, and so I got in, and that's all I know about it.

Mr. Carr pulled his forelock, rolled his quid around, and hitched up his trousers, but this display of emotion was thrown away on the police Sergeant.

"Who is sitting in the Tombs?" asked Capt.
Ward.

"Duffy." replied a bystander.

"Good!" said the Captain. "Then we will send the prisoners back to New York."

Donovan pleaded to be arraigned in Brooklyn. But half an hour later the prisoners were marched into the Tombs Police Court and locked up in the pen. Policeman Clark made a charge of disorderly conduct against them, and swore that "while in a coach they caused a crowd to collect at this end of the Brooklyn Bridge, to the annoyance of those desiring to cross said ridge. The said Donovan was dressed in fancy costume."

Lawyer Kane appeared for the prisoners and moved for their discharge, but Justice Duffy said that they had attracted a crowd. Turning to Donovan he said:

"Any fool can jump off the bridge. A baby can do that. You ought to be sledging from or breaking stones. I sentence you to the Island for three months in default of $1,000 bail. I am determined to stop this nonsense."

Carr was fined $5. Both prisoners were locked up. Donovan went to his cell smilling, for he had no doubt that he will get bail.

The Bacon Investigating Committee. Ex-Superintendent James McDowell of the

New York and Sea Beach Railroad Company was before the Assembly Committee in Brooklyn yesterday. He said that John Y. McKane was a creditor of the original company, and took his pay in stock. That company be-came bankrupt and passed into the hands of an entirely new company. The railroad had a lease of some common lands back of the Sea Beach Hotel which the new company desired to purchase. They bid the schedule price for the land—$13.550 or $15.050. Sections refused to sell them this land until his claim against the old company was settled. The company was so anylous to secure this land that they yielded to McKane's demand and gave him four notes of $1.050 each in settlement of his old claim, and then secured deeds to the land. Af erward the witness was a bidder for 190 acres of common land at Norton's Point. His bid was $105.050, and was the highest. The Commissioners deferred the award and received other bids without notifying him, and finally sold the land to William siegier for $168.050. The witness considered the land the most valuable on the island, and would have given much more for it at public sale. mon lands back of the Sea Beach Hotel which the new

They declare that Stokes made fully $548',188' of profits in his transactions with the receivers in fraud of the rights of bondholders and they want to have the securities sold for the benefit of bondholders.

LYMAN BROWN, Esq.

Dear Sir: Some ten years ago I was afflicted with what the best doctors had termed chronic Dysrepsia. It baffled all their skill, and my friends thought I could not last long. My blood was in bad shape and I could scarce; years across the door.

In despair I sent for ten dellars worth of Seven Barks, and after using a few bottles; was out of the house and entirely cured. Since then I have had no other medicine in my house. Yours respectfully, THOS, FLOYD.

Gentlement: Ever since I came out of the war, up to two years ago, I had catarrh. At times the disease was very collensive. I tried all the doctors that I could sea, and nearly every catarrh medicine that I saw advertised, but I got no permanent relief intil two years ago, then I began taking 8.8.8. I felt immediate benefit from the medicine, and after taking six bottles I felt like a new man. When I began using the medicine I was in a very bad condition; my digestion was poor, I had a new man.
